

Helping to protect the UK takes a variety of Science & Technology professionals to tackle our unique challenges and meet our high standards...

Joining us means you'll challenge your hard and soft skills...

Like the software specialists supporting intelligence gathering operations with innovative solutions and teamwork...

Our call desk analysts providing IT support for intelligence officers in the field, by using creative thinking to identify leads and enabling smooth communication...

The engineers patching our networks to securely transport data across the world, by using their knowledge and adapting to the task...

And our project managers working with other government departments and UK intelligence agencies, to lead unique projects that meet our business needs, while keeping delivery on track...

Our careers aren't just exciting. They're diverse. Join us and enjoy applying your familiar skills in unexpected ways.

Science and Technology careers at SIS. They're not what you expect.